SEVERAL THINGS. . . .

Sno, 19 1/2, thought to be too venerable for death, lies under swooping oak branches at the foot of the sideyard brick wall at 806 E. Seventh. A plant and concrete mark her place.

Sno was a white, Persian longhair, which in comparable people life (ratio of 7 years to 1 for a cat or dog) was almost 140 years old.

She was smarter than that. In later years, she never crossed a street, never tolerated another cat in the territory, never seemed to worry about the many 'morrows she saw, never used up those "nine lives."

Of old age, a cancerous eye, recently suffering a heart attack. Born in Lawton, Okla. Les and Martin cried. I hid behind some sunglasses.

Growing greenery of this watery spring reminds of the Botanical Gardens in Washington where everything from the smallest fern to giant tropical plants press against the glass walls. I understand Fort Worth has a fine botanical center as well.

Skylab II will launch Sunday. Technical difficulties caused the mission to be scrubbed early this week. The earth orbit shot will be at Cape Kennedy, but control will again be at Houston. This ride is eight months and all kinds of implications for space station experiments which will change our lives further in mining, forestry, agriculture among others.

Milam tennis got a lift the other day when the CISD school board agreed to purchase a site for a court or courts, depending on size of lot.

A back board has been added at the improved courts at Yoe Campus by the Women's Tennis Association. New back stops may be possible when the court or courts at Cameron Junior High are built.

This individual sport never had any greater participation in a town of 6,000. New facilities will assure its growth. City of Cameron can also help. Some 100 youngsters and adults are wanting to play on three Yoe Courts.

Understand another prisoner went over the wall at Milam Jail, jumped for a tree and broke an arm, a leg and what all.

Better get that new one story jail quick. It would seem escapees are attempting to fly. This old brick "bastille" would be a good museum, fails of being a safe launching pad or "jumping off place."

BABE RUTH'S CAR - This 1924 Moon was specially built for Babe Ruth, according to its owner, Taylor Morris of Maraksville. The vintage auto sports a special aluminum hood ornament with a baseball on top of spread wings, and has a German silver radiator frame. The car is one of several owned by Morris, who said this Moon is in its original condition, with black paint still glossy and interior spotless and in excellent condition.

Donor Program Best: Red Cross

"Blood is living human tissue that should not be sold," Mrs. Phyllis Swanton, Red Cross Blood Center representative, told a group of civic leaders at The Texan Tuesday noon.

She was accompanied from Waco by Mrs. Lacey White, R. N., one of the bloodmobile nurses.

Meeting with Mrs. Glenda Moseley, local blood program chairman, were Nancy Jensen, Rev. Alvis Coleman, L. W. Stroup, Dr. Douglas Perrin and Dr. Raymond C. Klevansky.

Mrs. Swanton emphasized the difference between volunteer donor programs, such as the Red Cross has, and commercial blood banks, which sell blood for high prices to patients. "You have to be really hard up to sell a pint of blood for $5," she said, to illustrate the dubious quality of commercial blood.

She explained that the Red Cross program offers total coverage, which means that every resident of Milam County is eligible to receive needed blood from the Red Cross Center at Waco. It also means that families of residents are covered, even if they live out of the county.

The only requirement is for the patient's family to notify the blood program chairman that blood has been used and needs to be replaced. A charge of $16 is made by the hospital for the blood, which covers blood program costs. That fee will be going up to $18, Mrs. Swanton said, because of a new test developed to test blood for hepatitis. All hospitals will be required to make the test.

She told of how donors' blood is stored at the Waco center, ready for shipment to hospitals within this region. After 21 days the whole blood is separated into components, which can still be used in medical treatments. Some of the derivatives are serum albumin, used for emergency treatment of shock; gamma globulin for the prevention of measles in infants and protection from or modification of infectious hepatitis in persons exposed to the disease; and anti-hemophilic factor for the treatment of hemophiliacs.

Just four percent of Cameron residents are asked to give blood for the protection of the remaining 96 percent of the population, Mrs. Swanton said. Families in the community are dependent upon the Red Cross blood program, knowing that in an emergency the blood will be there for loved ones.

She said the Waco center has increased production of blood recently, to keep up with the demands for whole blood and components.

Cameron's quota has risen from the 71 units, standard for years, to 73 units. The next bloodmobile visit will be in July.

Commissioners View Jail Repairs, Park

Milam County Commissioners meeting in regular session Monday morning heard a petition from Buckholts residents, a request from the sheriff for jail repairs, and discussed the building of a park and boat ramp at the old Black Bridge.

The petition from Buckholts was for opening up West Second street for public use and for landowners to build residences. The Court approved the request.

Sheriff Carl Black told Commissioners about another jail break, and told them if a new jail is not built soon he would "not be responsible." The sheriff said he is having trouble getting bricklayers and welders to affect repairs in the jail "runaround" where a prisoner escaped Saturday. (See separate story.)

Black said bricks would have to be laid, the window frame repaired, and jail bars repaired and new ones added on the top floor.

County Judge O. B. Harden told commissioners they would have to decide what to do about the Magna-Craft building on the county's recently acquired property across from the courthouse, proposed site for a new jail. Commissioners were asked to tour the property after the meeting.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department wants to build a boat ramp for fishermen at Black Bridge on the Brazos River. However the landowner at that location apparently is unwilling to give up land for the ramp. Judge Harden said the landowner had spoken of building a park near the bridge. Commissioner LaVert McKinney was authorized by the Court to try to persuade the landowner to let the park and ramp be built.

Judge Harden said the P&W Dept. is willing to spend up to $80,000 on the location for a ramp and park.

County Clerk Wayne Wieser officiated at a swearing in ceremony authorizing the Court to act as a board of equalization, to convene June 4 at 9 a.m.

Rogers Industrial Foundation Is Open To Members

The Rogers Industrial Foundation held its third meeting and is in the process of being officially organized. Fifteen people attended the meeting, and a constitution will be adopted and officers elected when the membership reaches 20.

Purpose of the foundation is to attract business and new industry and stimulate growth in the Rogers community.

Wayne Cornelius was named temporary chairman and James Wentrcek, temporary secretary - treasurer.

Memberships are available at $50 each or associate memberships at $10 each. Those interested in joining may contact James Wentrcek at the First State Bank in Rogers.

The next meeting will be announced at a later date.

Expansion Seen For S-ER Water

A proposed $130,000 extension of the Salem-Elm Ridge Water Supply Corporation drew full endorsement of prospective water users at the annual corporation meeting here last week.

Although federal grant money is not available for the expansion, prospective members voted unanimously to pay a $100 initial membership fee and $10 monthly minimum water bill. To date 68 have paid membership in the proposed extension. A minimum of 80 are needed for the extension.

Henry Ivey, county FHA supervisor, said the water line extension would follow Highway 36 from the end of the present line to Buckholts and toward Norman Valley. He said there were 100 to 120 prospective customers on the route.

The proposed extension of Salem-Elm Ridge Water Supply Corporation would bring the number of rural water customers to more than 1,700 in Milam County. Ivey said Southwest Milam Water Corporation was the largest with 575 members when construction is completed. Milano Water Corporation has about 400 members.

Ivey said only two areas of the county are without water lines or proposed water lines. These are in the Brushy Creek area and a section at Jones Prairie toward the Brazos River.

Miles Locke of Waco is engineer for the proposed water line extension. Salem-Elm Ridge Corporation officers are Alvin Mullinax, president; Charlie Tomek, vice president; Mrs. Frankie Ehler, secretary and directors Dwayne Orsag and Eugene Tomek.

Man Injured In Escape Try

A Buckholts man is in serious condition at Scott and White Hospital, Temple, following a fall as he was attempting to escape from Milam County jail Saturday afternoon.

Roy Perez, who had been arrested following a complaint from his wife, escaped from the jail "runaround" by removing bricks from a window and climbing out onto the top of the jail. He jumped from the roof trying to catch hold of a tree limb, and when the limb broke he fell, shattering his leg, breaking an arm, and knocking some teeth out.

He was found by Sheriff Carl Black who had just driven up and heard the limb break.

Perez was first taken to St. Edward Hospital and then transferred to the Temple hospital.

Fete Parade Open To Entries

Anyone interested in entering this year's Folk Fete parade is asked to contact Dana Kestenbaum by mail at Box 192 or by calling him at 697-3095.

The parade will be held downtown at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 9.

Entries may consist of antique cars, horses, floats, etc., and participants are asked to contact Kestenbaum and let him know what they are entering in the parade.

Council Vows Action On Overgrown Lots

Special use permits and petitions took up most of the city council's time during its regular meeting Tuesday evening. Mayor pro tem Bob Clark presided in the absence of Mayor Gene Blake, who was in Washington, D. C. with A. W. McCullin attending hearings on the annual arrangements program.

A group of women attended the meeting to petition the council to do something about lots on East 18th Street which are overgrown with tall weeds, and have old machinery on them. One woman said 2 copperheads were killed in the area and it is dangerous for small children in the neighborhood.

Council promised the city code inspector would check the place and take necessary action to get it cleaned up.

Henry Litzman appeared before the council asking a special use permit to build a mobile home park, pointing out that half the area he would use is zoned for commercial use. Ed Bigbee, city code inspector, pointed out that a special permit is required under the mobile home ordinance no matter how the land is zoned.

The request was denied because of a group of residents who appeared objecting to the park.

Another permit was granted for a woman to place a mobile home at the corner of 8th and Emancipation.

Carl Grothe asked the council for permission to use the arena at Lekbetter Park for a tractor pull to be held in conjunction with Folk Fete. Permission was granted with the stipulation that the arena be restored to its original condition afterwards.

George Miller asked the council to close 15 1/2 Street near his property as the alley is only 11 feet wide and cannot be used as a street. Council moved to abandon the street between Houston and Central.

Bids were opened on plumbing and electric work in the mall area. Council moved to refer bids to the urban renewal office of study by engineers. Bids were also opened on fire nozzles for the fire department.

FUCHS WINS AWARD AT SAN DIEGO

Gary Fuchs of Cameron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Fuchs, won a top honor at the International Science and Engineering Fair in San Diego, California.

Fuchs, 16, student at Yoe High School, won a special award from the U. S. Commerce Patent Office. A Copperas Cove youth, William Max Duncan, won a first place award in the botany division.

Both youths were first place winners in the Central Texas Regional Science Fair held at Baylor University in March.

"This is the first time a participant in our fair has won a first place award, and we've never won a patent award either," said Dr. Bryce Brown of Baylor University, director of the regional fair.

Fuchs, junior chemistry student, received a $25 bond and a certificate of achievement for his project, "Formation of Egg Yolks." He fed fat-soluble dyes to chickens, enabling him to study stages of yolk development.

Combination Will Work...

Congratulations to Rogers for organizing an industrial foundation. This action recognizes the realities which catch up with old cotton towns.

Cameron's experience in light industry has been favorable, Temple's favorable, Waco's favorable, all in the past five or six years. Without this development, it would be interesting to see where this Cen-Tex area might be.

Rogers is moving in this direction within view of both Temple and Cameron's successes.

Rogers has a large school district, good location on SH 36 and Santa Fe Railroad. It is possible sub-contractors to some of the larger plants in Temple or Waco might be interested in a community of 1,000.

Industrial organization requires many other things, Rogers leaders know. But the alternative to non-action and a plateau in development at the bottom of curve rather than a rise back.

Industry can dovetail with modern agri-business. Rogers is joining the list of towns and cities seeing the combination will work.

Volunteers For Folk Fete...

Folk Fete needs volunteers this year for ticket taking at the gate and numerous jobs in the expanded effort to bring off a larger celebration in its fourth year.

It all will be in or around Cameron National Guard Armory, gaining the advantage of continuous entertainment at one location so that parking, attractions and crowds can be drawn together.

If you would like to help during the June 8-9 Folk Fete, contact Charles Kunz, Folk Fete president or other officers.

It can be a lot of fun amidst all the crowds and a help toward making Folk Fete an even larger success in years to come.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

MOTHER, CHILD SKULL SET AUCTION STOPPED

Rep. John Melcher (Mont.) "...I rise in sorrow and outrage over something brought to my attention late yesterday to announce that I have called on the Attorney General of the United States to investigate and, if justified, prosecute those responsible for the advertised sale to be held in Orlando, Fla., Saturday, April 28, of a Montana Indian mother and child skull set, including skin and foot.

"I have been given the April 17 issue of the 'Antique Trader' published at Dubuque, Iowa. This publication contains a double-page advertisement on pages 6 and 7, announcing an auction set for Saturday, April 28 by the Antique World, 750 South Orange Blossom Trial, Orlando, Fla., which proclaims itself one of the largest antique dealers in the world.

"It announces the sale of 'an important collection . . . and features as one of six photographically illustrated items for sale: 'Mother and child Indian skull with skin and foot (Montana)' . . .

"I have asked the Attorney General to determine if the sale can be stopped, the remains returned to Montana for decent interment if they are genuine, and to investigate whether laws against grave robbing, sepulture, interstate transportation of the loot of grave robbers by anyone now or previously connected with this ghoulish episode. . . They are for sale as family treasures, antique trinkets for around the house. . .

"I apologize to American Indians on the behalf of all the decent people of this country and assure them that if this insulting wrong can be ameliorated in any way, I intend to see it done. . .

"I am advised that since I first protested, the Congressman from Florida (Mr. Frey) has been in touch with the owners of the Montana mother and child Indian skulls offered for sale in an antique auction at Orlando, Fla., and that the items have been taken out of the sale and are to be turned over to Montana for appropriate disposition. . ."

CRUMP'S GRASS ROOTS COMMENT

We quote a member of our staff, "Heaven knows what else goes on. It's good that this is out in the open."

New Monuments Mark Baylor Site

Anyone approaching Baylor University from the northeast, northwest or southwest won't have any trouble finding his destination. Those three corners are marked clearly by monuments proclaiming the entrance to the state's oldest university in continuous existence.

Mrs. C. A. Middleton of Corsicana bequeathed $15,000 to Baylor. Her son C. Elliott Middleton of Corsicana decided to use the money to build the monuments after Baylor President Abner V. McCall and Executive Vice President and Provost Herbert H. Reynolds had given him a list of suggested projects.

Each monument reads, "This entrance marker to Baylor University was made possible through the generosity of Mrs. C. A. Middleton, Corsicana, Texas.

Poage Hails Enactment Of Rural Electrification Act

WASHINGTON

Chairman W. R. (Bob) Poage, D-Texas, of the House Committee on Agriculture today hailed the enactment of legislation amending the Rural Electrification Administration Act, the only major revision of the original 1936 law aside from the addition of the telephone program and the telephone bank.

"It's not all everyone wanted, but it's good legislation and basically assures continuance of a program that has raised the standard of living of millions of Americans," said Congressman Poage, author of the REA Telephone Act and the Telephone Bank Act. The Texan, who was not in Congress when the original REA law was passed, directed weeks of hearings and conferences which culminated in passage of the new legislation.

Just signed into law by the President, it shifts the burden of financing the program from the Treasury to the private money market. It does this through insured and guaranteed loans rather than through direct loans financed with annual appropriations.

The great bulk of the loans will be at a five percent interest rate. The 2 percent loan program which had been terminated January 1 by the Administration is partially restored by making such loans again available, but only to the most needy electric power and telephone systems.

Under the guaranteed loans, power and telephone associations borrow directly from commercial institutions at going interest rates, with the REA backing up the amount borrowed. With the insured loans, the REA is the intermediary and pays the difference between the rate to the borrower and the prevailing commercial interest rate.

Final wording of the legislation was worked out by House and Senate Conferees. They agreed to drop mandatory language when the Administration, through a letter from Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz to Chairman Poage, pledged voluntary continuation of the 2 percent loans to the most needy systems.

As passed originally by the Senate, the bill directed reinstatement of the old REA program. A similar bill was introduced in the House by Rep. Frank Denholm, D-S. D. The language of both these bills was displaced by Poage's compromise creating a revolving fund to finance the program, instead of annual appropriations as in the past.

VA Issues Low Cost Insurance

The Veterans Administration last year issued 17,600 veterans low cost "RH" Service Disabled Life Insurance policies totaling $165 million, it was reported by Jack Coker, VA Regional Director.

Coker noted $1.5 billion worth of "RH" insurance has been issued to 173,000 service - connected disabled veterans since the program's inception in April 1951.

Generally, the insurance must be applied for within one year after VA notifies veterans that their disabilities have been rated as service-connected.

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editar:

There has been a lot of talk in the newspapers and on the streets about a gasoline shortage this summer and what I've been reading lately suggests there's a grain of truth in both sources.

At least, officials in Washington have been warning a shortage is possible, and are making suggestions to avoid it, such as spending your vacation close to home instead of seeing how many miles you can run up in two weeks. Another suggestion is to reduce the maximum speed limit to 50 miles an hour, since a car burns less gas at 50 than 70 and also requires fewer ambulances calls.

These are half-way measures. When you stop to think about it, after all the supply of oil inside the earth is limited, there are just so many barrels down there, and some day we're bound to pump it all out. No oil, no gasoline. No gasoline, no cars, at least as we know them now.

At that point, the world will have to turn back to organic transportation. That is, the horse.

And I can't help but think of a friend of mine who had an uncle years ago who invested all his money in opening up a chain of livery stables just as the automobile was coming on the scene. Naturally his empire collapsed.

For years he has been held up as an example of utter lack of foresight, but if he were living now he might be due an apology. If he could have just hung on a little longer he might have become a transportation tycoon, with livery stables from one end of the country to the other offering a complete line of feed, service and parts for all makes of buggies, surreys, horses, mules and even oxen. I don't know if he'd have thought of this, but his brand name could with a little imagination and the changing of a few letters in signs already in place be called Oxxen.

Say, if you think the price of meat is high, wait till we find out what the cost of bugging is.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

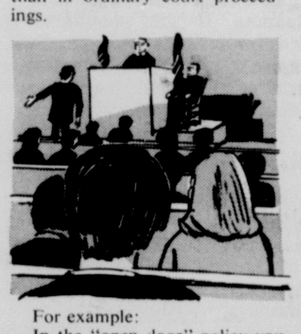
Living Constitution

Visitors to the nation's capital can gaze upon the original United States Constitution, painstakingly preserved in a helium-sealed glass case in the National Archives Building.

But you don't have to travel all the way to Washington to "see" the Constitution. Just step into your local courtroom on Law Day, May 1, or any other day for that matter, and you can watch the Constitution in living action. Nowhere are its durable doctrines more plainly on display than in ordinary court proceedings.



For example:

In the "open door" policy you can recognize the Sixth Amendment in operation, guaranteeing to every accused person a public trial.

In the careful spelling out of accusations you can see Article One, Section Nine at work, guarding — through habeas corpus — against the holding of any prisoner without clear and specific charges.

In the jury box you can see the embodiment of the Seventh Amendment.

And as testimony is given, the Fourth Amendment is screening out evidence obtained by unfair methods; the Fifth Amendment is shielding the accused from having to testify against himself; and the Sixth Amendment is giving him the opportunity to confront his accusers and ask them questions.

Meanwhile, on behalf of the community at large, the law's wheels turn, carrying out the Preamble's call to "establish justice" and "insure domestic tranquility."

One who foregoes a visit to the courtroom because he fears the proceedings are too complicated is missing a basic point: it is the simple elements, these constitutional ABC's, that are most important in a system of justice.

Perhaps this is what Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes had in mind when he said:

"We need education in the obvious more than investigation of the obscure."

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Bertram S. Brown, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

Information Trade

So many advances have been made against mental illness, and there are so many positive activities promoting mental health underway, that one of our problems today is the gathering and sharing of knowledge.

This is why the National Institute of Mental Health is aiding the development of a nationwide communications network—helping to link people and community services throughout the country in a partnership.

Everybody who has mental health information to trade is invited to join in. Exemplifying this, the Institute recently held an information interchange which provided a unique swapping of ideas. The interchange was featured by a daily newsletter produced by the students of the University of Texas' School of Journalism's graduate program in mental health information.

News and ideas presented via the students' newsletter included information on such new activities as a California program offering youth alternatives to drugs, curbside films that focus on the emotionally disturbed child, and the development of a new directory of services available for autistic children.

These and other items at the information interchange were also geared to tie in with the invigorated attack being implemented for child mental health.

In this area, the NIMH is especially seeking the enlistment of teachers in the Nation's communities through its "One To Grow On" program. This new activity is designed to help teachers develop healthy children and youth in their classrooms.

Here also is an area where the communications network comes in. NIMH is asking anyone with ideas and materials and questions to participate. What can you offer? What do you need?

For more information about "One To Grow On," the Communications Network, or any other aspect of mental health—or to contribute ideas, write to the National Institute of Mental Health, Room 15-99, Rockville, Md. 20852.

Tigers May Become Extinct

By Hugo Anson

SWITZERLAND

Reuter -- The global population of tigers has fallen from 100,000 to about 5,000 since the end of the first World War and the species is in danger of dying out completely, according to the World Wildlife Fund here.

Man has already exterminated more than 100 species of mammal and experts fear the tiger may be next on the list.

The Fund estimates that less than 60 years ago there were 100,000 tigers roaming in Asia, from the Caspian Sea to Vladivostok, Russia, and south to the foot of India, Malaysia and Indonesia.

But man has cut down the forests in which the tigers live, killed off the deer and pig on which they feed, and ruthlessly hunted them as the greatest trophy of all.

In recent years governments have attempted to stem the devastating slaughter, but the poachers too have become more skillful and determined, attracted by the money to be made from selling the tiger's skin to make coats and rugs.

Experts say one of the greatest problems is that the few tigers left are scattered in small pockets over a vast area, whereas tiger sanctuaries need to cover 3,000 square miles to be really effective.

This is because a tiger needs 10 square miles of territory and to maintain the full genetic variety of the species at least 300 of them must be able to mix freely for breeding.

At present the existing sanctuaries in India, Nepal and Bangladesh are much smaller than the 3,000 square mile minimum and furthermore they are isolated from each other.

These three countries have started action in earnest to save the tiger and have banned hunting of the big cats, except of declared man-eaters. The export of their skins has also been banned.

But experts say that the main requirement is to ensure the conservation of adequate forest habitats for the animals, with plentiful prey species. This in fact means conserving whole ecosystems and the tiger has thus become a symbol of wildlife conservation as a whole.

Slaughter of the tiger is specially well documented in India where British soldiers and administrators and Indian princes killed them by the hundred.

VA Head Urges Use Of GI Bill

College graduates have an average lifetime income that is $237,000 more than persons with only a high school diploma -- $608,000 compared to $371,000.

The earning averages from Department of Labor studies were pointed out by Jack Coker, Waco VA Regional Office Director, in urging the use of G. I. Bill training by Vietnam veterans.

Under the G.I. Bill, school-bound single veterans receive $220 a month for full-time training, up to a maximum of 36 months of school attendance, or a total of $7,920. The montly allowance is increased for veterans with dependents.

The G. I. Bill has other features. Veterans enrolled in high school studies also receive monthly allowances without a charge against basic eligibility, so that full G. I. Bill entitlement is retained for college attendance.

Coffee Honors Retiring Teacher At Buckholts

Mrs. Mildred Martin of Maysfield who will retire from her career as a teacher this year, was honored with a coffee Saturday afternoon, May 12 at the home of Mrs. Calvin Rachui of Buckholts. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Norman Kuzel and Mrs. Glenda Ruzicka. Teachers, school board members and parents of the children Mrs. Martin taught in Buckholts gave her an all-weather coat and an electric broiler.

Mrs. Martin received her B.S. degree from the University of San Marcus - - then a teacher's college. She has taught a total of forty years in the following schools: Maysfield two different times for a total of five years; Pin Oak -- a one teacher school; Belmena twice with a total of ten years. She taught two years in San Gabriel and one year in Walkers Creek when it was a one-teacher school. She taught two years in Ben Arnold and two years in Barclay, Falls County-- the only two years she taught out of Milam County. From there she went to Burlington and taught nine years; them to Cameron for five years. This completes her third year in Buckholts.

Mrs. Martin was the last teacher some of these schools had as they gradually consolidated with larger school systems.

She recalls her first year of teaching at Maysfield when her salary was only $75 a month for 8 months. "I was glad to get that because at that time it was hard to get a teaching position without experience," she said.

She has enjoyed her teaching career and has found it to be both challenging and rewarding. "There is nothing more interesting than children," she remarked.

She will miss the classroom and children, but decided on an early retirement so she can do some of the things she has never had enough time for while teaching such as traveling, reading, club work, gardening and enjoying her granddaughter.

"There will be no rocking chair for me as I plan to keep busy," Mrs. Martin said.

Special Care For Nonflamable Sleepwear

COLLEGE STATION

Keep children's nonflammable sleepwear effective by giving it proper care.

"Read and follow instructions provided on the garment's labels," advises Marilyn Brown, consumer education - clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

"By law, care labels must be permanently attached to all garments. Nevertheless, consumers often ignore, misinterpret or misunderstand these instructions."

Improper laundering and maintenance frequently reduces or destroys a fabric's flame retardancy, Miss Brown emphasized.

"Treated cotton fabrics keep their flame retardant characteristic longer if laundered with a high-phosphate detergent. These detergents keep minerals and soil curds suspended until they're rinsed away."

However, many areas restrict the use of high-phosphate detergents. Also some homemakers prefer soap or low-phosphate detergents over high - phosphate ones.

"Never use soap with flame retardant garments. It reacts with minerals in water to form curds which stick to fibers, reducing their flame retardancy.

"For consumers preferring low-phosphate detergents, use a low sudsing product and double the normal amount. The increased amount does a better job of holding mineral and soil particles in suspension so they can be rinsed away -- instead of collecting on fabrics," Miss Brown explained.

"Don't bleach a nonflammable item -- the bleach chemically attacks its finish.

"Strong chemicals often used by commercial laundries also can attack such finishes.

"In addition, hard water reduces a finish's effectiveness. Although mechanical -ion-exchange equipment for softening water effectively reduces hardness, simply adding water softeners to the laundry may not remove particles.

"Certain flame retardant fibers are machine washable using warm water and any detergent.

"However, since these fibers have a low melting point, they shouldn't be ironed. They can be tumbled dry at a low setting.

"It's up to the homemaker to provide nonflammable fabrics proper care to maintain their flame retardancy," the specialist concluded.

FOOD PACKAGING

Modern frozen food packaging containers, the packaging experts note, bring countless products into every town and city minus the skin, bones, scales, feathers, innards, stalks, peels, leaves and other mountains of solid waste that would cause catastrophic local disposal problems.

SOME "GUARDIAN ANGELS" LOOK A LITTLE DIFFERENT

And some of them, such as this one, have unusual names. Electrostatic precipitator. It's a protective guardian of the air you and your children breathe—a complex, mechanical giant being installed at Texas Power & Light Company's new lignite-fueled generating plants to safeguard the quality of the air—and your environment.

But it's only one of the guardian measures TP&L uses. Soil is reclaimed at lignite plants by sodding beneficial grasses in areas where lignite has been produced. TP&L also conducts water and aquatic life studies in its power plant reservoirs to find better ways to preserve (and enhance) the quality of both. Even new substations are being designed to be eye-pleasing.

As your needs for electricity continue to grow, TP&L must also—but we do it with protective concern for the environment.

Big Four Autos Enter Alamo 500

COLLEGE STATION

Entries from each of the nation's Big Four automobile manufacturers will make up one of the most competitive fields ever assembled at Texas World Speedway for the June 10th Alamo 500.

Probable entries include Richard Petty and Buddy Baker, who will carry the banner for Chrysler in a pair of Dodges. Petty will be going after his third win at the Texas oval. The Randleman, N. C. charger took the checkered flag in the 1971 Texas 500 and again in last June's 500-miler. Baker hopes to match Petty's win record with a second consecutive victory at Texas World Speedway after edging out A.J. Foyt for a win in the Texas 500 last November.

General Motors is expected to be represented by a strong foursome of Chevrolets and a lone Pontiac entry. The entries of Bobby and Donnie Allison along with Cale Yarborough and Benny Parsons should give Chevrolet its best chance ever for a win at the 2-mile, high-banked facility. The Pontiac challenge will come from Houston's H. B. Bailey. Bailey's new Grand Am could give Pontiac its first NASCAR Grand National win since '63.

Two strong contenders from the Ford Motor Company camp that could produce a winner are Bobby Isaac in the "small block" Ford and David Pearson in the Wood Brothers Mercury. Isaac's continued good performance on super speedways with the little Ford places him among the favorites. The Catawba, N. C. chauffeur won the inaugural Texas 500 at TWS in 1969. Pearson, winner of five consecutive races this season, will definitely be a top choice for a win in the Alamo 500.

American Motors' bid will rely on Dave Marcis at the wheel of the Roger Penske prepared Matador. The Matador picked up a win in the season opener at Riverside with Indianapolis 500 champion Mark Donohue at the wheel. Since Donohue's return to the USAC and SCCA circles, NASCAR veteran Marcis has taken over the driving duties of the Matador and is long overdue for a win.

Mauzy Advocates Air Service To Small Towns

A state-wide effort to promote air transporation that will give adequate service to the smaller communities of Texas was advocated by Senator Oscar Mauzy of Dallas when he served as Acting Governor recently.

Air transportation is of particular importance to the people of this State because it extends over vast areas with a large number of widely - separated population centers, Mauzy said in a proclamation issued from his office.

However, major trucklines have been withdrawing and curtailing service to many communities and concentrating on more densely traveled routes, leaving many parts of Texas without scheduled air service, Mauzy said.

Sports Murray-Go-Round

By Tom Murray

EMORY'S YOUNG BULLS

Seldom does one have a great college football offense without an outstanding fullback. Check it out. Look at Texas with a Roosevelt Leaks or a Steve Worster. Then, recall the Burnt Orange Powderpuff of 1971 with a converted, 180 - pound second - string halfback at that vital Wishbone fullback.

Emory Bellard starts his Second Edition Texas Aggies off on the right foot, this fall, with two of those Bull Elephant Fullbacks--a pair of talented sophomores: 212 pound Alvin Bowers out of Wharton and Bucky Sams, the Amarillo All-Stater.

Bowers is a lot like Leaks, perhaps a little faster than the '72 AP Second team All-American. Also like the Brenham Bull, Alvin was sought-after at graduation but was on a few Bluechip Lists.

Looking at his two Aggie fullbacks, in mid spring training, Emory said, admiringly, "He (Bowers) will make an excellent fullback. Bucky Sams is a good one too. Those two will fight it out."

Speaking of fullbacks, keep your eye on Marsh White at Arkansas. He even looks like Leaks. And, he IS faster. All Frank Broyles needs do is keep the 225-pound Bonham Junior well. The Razorbacks were a much better football team at the tail of 1972 as White finally got over that preseason foot injury. Mighty Marsh crunched out 154-yards in one Arkansas spring game. He was called a "Black Steve Worster," last August, you may recall.

OWL QB A GEM!

The Offensive Surprise Package of the '73 SWC football season? Keep an eye on Rice QB Fred Geisler, the Florida State Transfer. He's one of those guys you'll hear people asking, "Where did he come from?" In fact, a very prominent Houston Rice Alum, and a knowledgeable football observer, says, "You can quote me, Fred Geisler will be the 1973 All-SWC Quarterback." Imagine, Rice Genius Al Conover holding a card like Geisler and going out and recruiting Tommy Kramer, the best throwing quarterback in Texas over the past decade.

Perhaps Broyles' Razorbacks will throw the ball a little less often with the great rifle, Joe Ferguson gone, but much of what is thrown will be caught by Baytown Lee's Reggie Craig, the 200-pound Junior who just might be the best wide-receiver in the SWC. . .Don't tell the Astros Pro Athletes feel no emotion. Leo Durocher's crew was primed to leap all over Cincinnatti when the Defending National League Champs came into the Astrodome Friday. And, as you know, they did. The Cincy's not only rubbed the Astros' nose in it last summer but also laughed at 'em. You don't often get away with the latter.

The Lonely Heart

Tennis Tourney Planned

The 59th Annual Texas Sectional Tennis Championships to be held at the H. E. Butt Tennis Center in Corpus Christi, June 2-10 with 2500 anticipated entries will be the world's largest tennis tournament for the second consecutive year.

Sponsored by the Corpus Christi Park and Recreation Department and sanctioned by the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association and Texas Tennis Association, the Texas Sectionals is the primary tournament for ranking purposes in the Texas Section. Texas' top tennis players will be competing in the event.

Entries for all events will close at 6:00 p.m. Friday, May 18, 1973. Fees, which must accompany each entry, are $4.25 per person for 18 year olds and under for each event, and $5.50 per person for each event for adults. Checks should be made payable to the C.C. Tennis Association and entries mailed to tournament referee Bob Mapes, Box 61-85, Corpus Christi, Texas 78411.

Ford Men Honored

Dean White and Sam Janes, two members of the sales staff of Hefley Stedman Motor Co. of Cameron, will be honored for outstanding sales performance during 1972 at a Ford 300-500 Club banquet in May.

R. E. Parr, Ford Division's Houston district sales manager, said a select number of Ford dealership salesmen will be presented a club membership award for "excellent retail sales performance."

Fire Extinguisher Vital Equipment For Boats

Man's best friend may be his dog on land, but on the water his best friend could be a fire extinguisher.

Officials for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department remind boaters that fire extinguishers are required by law on many outboard motor boats and all inboards.

Your boat is required to have a fire extinguisher on board if it has:

-- Closed compartments under the thwarts and seats wherein portable fuel tanks may be stored.

-- Double bottoms not sealed to the hull or which are not completely filled with flotation material.

-- Closed living spaces.

-- Closed stowage compartments in which combustible or flammable materials are stored.

-- Permanently installed fuel tanks.

Some boat owners consider the extinguisher a superfluous piece of equipment until their boat, worth several thousand dollars, catches fire.

Fires on boats are especially terrifying since there is usually no place to run. You can either fight the fire, or swim for your life. If you have no fire extinguisher on board, your alternatives are cut in half, say department officials.

Splashing water on boat fires won't help since they usually involve spilled gasoline. Water merely spreads the flames.

Four types of extinguishers are available for the boater -- foam, carbon dioxide (CO_2), freon and dry chemical.

Boat owners should make sure the fire extinguisher they purchase has the B-I or B-II classification required by the coast guard. This classification will be stamped on the fire extinguisher.

Boat owners should make frequent checks to be sure their extinguishers are in their proper stowage brackets and undamaged. Cracked or broken hose should be replaced, and nozzles should be kept free of obstructions.

Locking pins and sealing wiers should be checked to assure that the extinguisher has not been used since last recharged.

Extinguishers should never be tried merely to see if they are in proper operating condition because in many cases the valves will not properly rest, resulting in a gradual discharge.

Kubiak Reports How He Voted

Rep. Dan Kubiak, in the closing weeks of the 63rd Legislature, stated in his weekly newsletter how he voted on several bills presented to the House.

He said he voted against the passage of a bill lowering penalities on marijuana possession, because he could not be convinced that it was "without question the right move."

"The marijuana penalty provision was only a part of a larger comprehensive revision of the state's narcotics laws," he said. "Many features of revision were good and were recommended by Governor Briscoe, but the marijuana provision made the whole bill unacceptable to me."

Kubiak said he voted for a bill to let Texas insurance companies go to a system of competition in rates on automobile insurance, "because I believe it is a step in the right direction for lowering premiums."

He voted for a bill to make the death penalty mandatory in certain crimes -- including murder of a law officer or fireman on duty, murder for hire, murder during attempted prison escape and murder committed in connection with kidnapping, rape, arson or robbery.

"I have had many letters urging me to support a state housing program," Rep. Kubiak reported. "Legislation on such a plan is now in committee and if it comes to the House floor, I will support it."

The plan would cost the state little if anything, he added, but would benefit a great number of families who are steadily employed but have low annual incomes. The state would issue bonds to be channeled through local banks and mortgage institutions to insure the availability of low interest home loans.

Crusade Continues

Meetings began Wednesday, May 16 at Yoe High Stadium, and will be held each evening at 7:30 p.m. through Sunday, May 20. The community is enjoying music by a united choir as well as special numbers by various church groups.

Visiting evangelist is Dr. Charles McLaughlin, a renowned speaker for meetings of this type. His brother, the Rev. John McLaughlin is leading the singing.

The Ministers Association said that everyone in the community is invited. It is hoped that the whole community will turn out each evening. The First United Methodist Church and the First Baptist Church both have facilities available for baby-sitting for those requesting this service.

Missionary To Speak At Trinity

Rev. B. T. Griffin of Bryan will be guest speaker for special services Sunday, May 20, at Trinity Baptist Church in Cameron. Rev. Griffin is a Southern Baptist missionary from Lagos Nigeria, West Africa.

The special service will begin at 11 a.m. Sunday followed by a covered dish luncheon at noon. Gospel singing (regular 3rd Sunday singing) will be from 2 to 4 p.m.

Methodists To Act On Proposals

A major item on the agenda of the seven United Methodist annual conferences meeting in Texas and New Mexico beginning later this month will be action on eight amendments to the denomination's constitution referred by the 1972 General Conference.

Representing nearly one million members in 2,500 local United Methodist churches, lay and ministerial delegates will act on two proposals calling for greater participation of laymen in the church body.

One proposal would give laymen a vote on such matters as ordination, character, and conference relation of a minister. The second would permit each of the 76 annual conferences in the 10.6 million member denomination to elect as many additional lay members as necessary to equalize lay and ministerial membership in the annual conference.

A third proposal would remove the 21-years-of-age qualification for delegates to General Conference.

Other amendments deal with boundry changes within the denomination, substitution of nouns and pronouns in the constitution and a provision to permit more frequent meeting of the general church body.

You wonder how it got there . . . a sapling far from the forest. And grew . . . alone, untended, little-noticed. And flourished to stand like a sentinel against the horizon.

Maybe a tree understands, as sometimes man does not, the secret of God. We are never alone!

What we need He has provided. What we are to become He has designed. The beauty and majesty and grace that can emanate from one object, one creature, He has envisioned and made real . . . for all to share.

There is no loner.

But when we feel alone, then, more than ever, we are drawn to God and His Church. In faith, in friendship with others who believe, in service to those who need our affection and care—we discover how deeply and satisfyingly we belong.

Gause

By Mrs. Wanda Lee

On the May 1st tour of members of the Texas Community Improvement Program our community placed 2nd in a ten county area and won $75. This money will go for further community improvement. The Texas Community Improvement Program is an extension service out of Texas A&M University sponsored by the utility companies of Texas. The workers and people of our community did a real good job, which was greatly appreciated, in getting the town cleaned. Mr. W. L. Ditto gave permission for all the "junk" to be disposed of on some of his land, which was one of the biggest helps in the clean up.

This "clean up" came at just the appropriate time since Sunday, May 13th was the annual Mother's Day Homecoming. The program this year was held at the Methodist Church. Master of Ceremonies was Walter (Bud) Williams. The invocation was given by Rev. Harold Lange. Rev. Glenn Cinnell, pastor of our Baptist Church brought the devotional "Love Your Mother."

Special music this year was presented by the Kornegay family, the Worrells, Jimmy Harris and Preston Bowling presented the offitory music. Larry Wilson gave the offitory prayer. After announcements and congregation singing of "Bless Be the Tie" Rev. Jessie Jones gave the benediction.

Flowers were presented to the youngest mother, Mrs. Gloria Lange DeLuna, the oldest mother, Mrs. Lillie Ely and the oldest father, Mr. B. J. Kilpatrick.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN

One of the most important cogs in our credit - based economy is the well-managed credit bureau.

In many Texas communities, retail merchants sponsor their own bureau. In some places, they depend upon and cooperate with reputable independent bureaus.

The function of a credit bureau, regardless of who runs it, is to be an objective third party, performing the task of gathering information from business with whom the consumer has traded, and making that information available to other creditors.

The credit bureau is important to you, because it literally is the keeper of your financial reputation. An error in credit reporting could result in the loss of a property choice, a purchase bargain -- or a job.

In the past, there were frequent reports of abuses by some unscrupulous or careless keepers of credit records. The Congress responded to those reports by enacting the Fair Credit Reporting Act, which sets standards for proper operation of credit bureaus and firms which engage in credit record checks.

The Fair Credit Reporting Act prohibits the collection of credit data for any purpose other than for the granting of credit.

If a merchant is given a "bad" report on your credit rating, you should be informed, and you have the right to inqure as to the reason.

If you have innocently overlooked payment on an account, that gives you an opportunity to take care of it, and clear your record. If, for some reason, you have had to delay payments to your creditors, the negative report could prompt you to clear up the problem.

Feeding Operations Now Under Clean Air Act

COLLEGE STATION "Concern for people downwind from feedlots has resulted in the Texas Air Control Board issuing rules and regulations pertaining to confined livestock and poultry feeding operations," says Dr. John M. Sweeten of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Sweeten, an agricultural engineer in animal waste management at Texas A&M University, points out that the permit program adopted by the Texas Air Control Board on Sept. 1, 1971 considers the proper location of facilities with respect to surrounding land use and proper handling of manure and runoff to minimize odors and dust. The permit system, established under an amendment to the Texas Clean Air Act of 1967, includes requirements for a feedlot construction permit, operating permit and feedmill permit.

"Proposed feedlots for more than 1,000 animals of any species and feedlots expanding by more than 100 percent of their present capacity must be approved by permit before construction begins," notes Sweeten.

Information required in a construction permit application includes such things as capacity, plot plan, methods of manure disposal and dust control equipment. A typical permit restriction might state that adequate drainage be provided to prevent intense odors resulting from standing water on the feedlot surface.

"Then, operating permits must be applied for within 60 days of start-up," explains the engineer. "Such a permit is issued after all construction restrictions are met and when an operation is found free of air pollution problems."

A separate construction and operating permit is required for feed mills constructed in conjunction with feeding facilities. The feed mill application requires descriptions of such things as dimensions and efficiencies of air pollution abatement devices used in the mill's operation.

According to Sweeten, all operations regardless of size or type are also covered by the board's nuisance regulation. This regulation states that no one shall discharge any air contaminant (including odors and dust) in such concentration and duration as to injure human welfare or interfere with the normal use and enjoyment of property.

Feedlot operators can contact their local county Extension office or the Extension agricultural engineers at Texas A&M for additional information on meeting the standards set forth by the Texas Air Control Board.

Keeping It Clean

Meat processing is carried out under carefully controlled conditions in order to guard against contamination. This includes strict regulations which apply to the people who work in the processing plants as well as to the plants themselves. In addition to adherence to stringent health regulations, personal cleanliness is a constant concern. Clean white uniforms, plastic disposable gloves and hair covers are required. Both men and women must wear nets over long hair and a bearded man must wear a snood. Scientists and quality control experts are employed to make sure all standards are met.

GSPA Recognized As Good Spokesman

In a recent White House study about agricultural programs and policies, Grain Sorghum Producers Association was listed among the most effective farm organizations in the United States.

The Flanigan Report stated, "While the number of farm voters continues to decline in the U. S., farm organizations still pack legislative power increasingly through commodity organizations which can rally support for specific issues because of a unity of goals among the membership."

Commodity groups can "zero in on legislation," the report says. "They are more sophisticated, they're better organized, and they have better access to power than many other special interest groups."

As an example of their influence, the report pointed out the defeat in the House last year of a proposal to reduce the $55,000 limit on government payments to individual farmers to $20,000.

"Working hardest behind the scenes were the National Cotton Council, the National Association of Wheat Growers and the Grain Sorghum Producers," according to the report.

Inflation Ups Beef Price

As the cherished cut of beef makes its way from ranch to supermarket meat counter, it confronts increasing costs all along the line. Wages and taxes are up. The costs of materials, equipment and supplies, including feed, are up. Obviously, the retail price of beef must reflect these effects of inflation on the total economy in addition to the upward pressure of ever increasing consumer demand.

It Takes a Long Time

Producing a retail-ready cut of beef to put in the meat counter takes a lot of time. Although the actual production time is about two years, it takes up to four years to effect a substantial increase in production capacity. As a result, today's beef supply was determined by consumer demand two to four years ago. Likewise, today's demand will have a direct bearing on the available supply two to four years from now.

To avoid rust stains, use galvanized, aluminum or stainless steel nails for outdoor projects.

This program will be geared primarily to landowners having one or more farm ponds that they wish to manage properly for livestock water, recreation, and fish production.

Everyone interested in Farm Pond Management is welcome and encouraged to attend.

PECAN CASEBEARER

It is still a little early to tell for sure but it looks like the pecan nut casebearer spray dates will be about May 17-21 in Milam County. I was finding quite a few freshly laid eggs as of May 11.

The pecan nut casebearer is probably the major pest attacking pecans in Milam County. Pecan nut casebearer eggs, just visable to the naked eye, are greenish white when first deposited on the bloom tip of the small nutlet but later assume a reddish appearance. First generation larvae hatch from the eggs in 4 to 5 days and migrate to buds below nuts to feed for day or so before entering the nutlet. It is in this stage that they may be readily controlled with a suitable insecticide and thus timing is quite critical.

Applications should be made based on the presence of eggs and the initiation of nutlet entry by larvae. If you have a few yard trees or small orchard exact timing is when 2 to 3 nutlets per 100 clusters have been penetrated.

When spraying for the pecan nut casebearer be sure to include 1 tablespoon of Zinc sulphate per gallon of water to control rosette and use a recommended fungicide for pecan scab.

ST. AUGUSTINE

I. T. (Buddy) Gilbert of Cameron is cooperating with the county Extension Service in trying a new St. Augustine grass variety developed at Texas A&M.

The grass is named Foratam and was tested by Dr. Richard L. Duble and coworkers in the Soil and Crop Sciences Department at Texas A&M University.

Duble initiated this research several years ago testing several thousand seedlings and selections before finding this selection which is resistant to both chinch bug infestations and St. Augustine Decline (SAD) virus, two problems quite common in Milam County.

Dr. Duble provided a sample of this grass to the Milam County Extension office for demonstration purposes. This grass will not be released to the general public for another year or so.

Floratam can be distinguished from the common Texas variety by its darker green color, wider and longer leaf, larger stem and coarser texture. Floratam also grows faster than most common St. Augustine grass and may require more frequent mowing. The mowing height should be raised to two inches for Floratam to compensate for its coarse texture and growth rate.

SHARING CAN BE FUN!

One way we can help each other fight the high cost of living is to share favorite low-cost main dish recipes or other money saving ideas. If you would like to share a favorite, please send it to me along with your name and address for consideration. We will print as many as possible in my weekly column.

Please follow these steps in sending your recipes: Please print or type. List all ingredients first, followed by complete directions. Accuracy is important as testing cannot be done on all these recipes. Be sure to state can and/or package sizes. List approximate costs and number of servings possible from the dish.

I am looking forward to hearing from many of you real soon with your favorite recipes and ideas.

BUDGET STRETCHER: Use the syrup from canned fruits as a replacement for part of the liquid required in gelatin salads and desserts; or, thicken with cornstarch and use as a meat glaze or ice cream and dessert topping.
